Hôpital Sacré Coeur, based in Milot, Haiti, is the largest, private hospital in Northern Haiti serving a population of 225,000 and is widely recognized as the region's preeminent hospital.

Founded in 1993, by St. Louisan Dr. Ted Dubuque, Hôpital Sacré Coeur answers to a higher calling with a vision for a better world.

Hôpital Sacré Coeur continues to operate and improve the lives of tens of thousands in large part due to the tremendous support of The CRUDEM Foundation.

CRUDEM provides financial assistance & organizes medical volunteer teams from the U.S. who travel to Milot at their own expense. These teams help the 349 Haitian medical staff provide both primary and specialty medical care, including surgeries. The hospital hosted 315 volunteers, in 17 specialties in 2014.

Not only do the visiting medical teams perform surgeries and treat patients—alongside their Haitian counterparts—they also spend a lot of their time teaching and mentoring the Haitian staff. To learn more, visit: www.crudem.org
